HOSTILE ACTIVITIES AGAINST YUGOSLAV DIPLOMATIC ESTABLISHMENTS
AND PERSONNEL

On June 14, 1971, Momcillo Djulich, Editor of the Serbian newspaper in Gary, Indiana, and member of the Serbian Chetnik Movement, advised that in the event of a visit to the United States by Tito, there will probably be demonstrations in all areas of the United States against him. Djulich stated he believes there are over one million Serbs in the United States and that it would be impossible to exercise any control over them, thus insuring the demonstrations would be peaceful. Djulich stated that he, himself, was in favor of peaceful demonstrations, but he felt that it was very likely any demonstrations could become violent. Djulich stated that he does not know of any specific individuals or groups that are planning any violent demonstrations.

Djulich stated that a major incident in the United States during Tito's visit could cause the Soviets to take control of Yugoslavia, which would be promoting the cause of most Yugoslavs in the United States. Djulich stated that he is in favor of Soviet control in Yugoslavia.

Djulich advised that his organization does not support Bishop Dionisije and that he could furnish no information about their activities.
